African Police Fight Mob To Break Boycott

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Police used clubs and guns at Cape Town again Tuesday and fought a wild battle with a mob outside Durban in new efforts to break up the Negro work boycott.

The casualties included two dead and many beaten and injured. Some of the casualties were police.

Some Negroes joined the police in a wild melee with a mob of about 1,000 at Lamontville, 10 miles outside Durban.

The fight occurred when Negroes returning from work encountered a crowd waiting to beat them. Some Negroes were caught and beaten and others cut sticks and flailed at the mob before police arrived.

One Negro was killed and two were wounded by police in the fight. One white and several Negro policemen were clubbed, and an unknown number of Negroes injured.

Police, with armored cars, for the second day swooped upon the big Negro settlement of Nyanga near Cape Town in an effort to stamp out the work boycott.

A Negro policeman was backed to death after emptying his pistol into a crowd there. Two white policemen were beaten.

These casualties were reported by police, who did not give out any figures on Negro injured. But eyewitnesses said many Negroes were hurt.

About 60 per cent of Cape Town's Negro workers were reported to have quit the work boycott Monday, but Maj. J. J. Rheeder, a district police commander, said Nyanga was again "alive with defiant stayaways."

The township is a stronghold of the Pan Africanist Congress, militant Negro organization that ordered the boycott as a protest against the white supremacy laws of South Africa's Nationalist government, particularly the carrying of passbooks.

The government came under new pressure from some political, church and business leaders to negotiate instead of using force to end the racial strife.

But the government indicated it would ignore the pleas to talk with responsible Negro leaders. It put on a drive for swift Senate action on a bill outlawing the Pan Africanist Congress and the more moderate African National Congress.

Even the opposition United party joined in supporting the bill, and the only voices raised against it in Parliament came from the small Progressive party and the few members representing the Negroes.

An official of the African National Congress said the organization already has gone underground.

Police said they entered Cape Town's Negro settlement at Nyanga to protect those who want to work from terrorists attempting to prolong the boycott.

Police again smashed in the doors of houses and ordered Negroes into the streets, witnesses said. Those who refused were dragged out and beaten.

"Even those who obeyed the order were beaten up," one African said.

A native doctor said he had treated eight wounded Africans, including a pregnant woman, a 16-year-old boy and a man whose arm was nearly severed. He also said he administered first aid to numerous people clubbed by the police.

'Ben Hur' Wins 11 Oscars

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The costliest movie ever made — "Ben-Hur"—holds the greatest number of Oscars in the history of the Academy Awards.

The 15-million-dollar spectacle, a Biblical tale climaxed by a chariot race, took 11 awards Monday night at the 32nd annual Academy Awards show. This broke the record set last year by "Gigi," which won nine.

"Ben-Hur" failed to win in only one of the dozen categories for which it was nominated: "Screenplay—material from another medium." That award went to the British-made "Room at the Top."

"Room" also won the top actress award for French actress Simone Signoret. No "Ben-Hur" actress was nominated.

Charlton Heston won the best actor award for his portrayal of the title role of Ben-Hur. Welshman Hugh Griffith was named best supporting actor for his role as the Arab sheik in "Ben-Hur."

The movie spectacle put a near stranglehold on the top awards for best picture and to William Wyler as best director.

The classic, written by Gen. Lew B. Wallace near the turn of the century, also reaped awards for: best costume design in color, best sound, best film editing, best art direction, best color cinematography and best musical scoring.

Shelley Winters, nominated for the third time, was one of the few to break "Ben-Hur's" near-monopoly. She was named best supporting actress for her role in "The Diary of Anne Frank."

Master of Ceremonies Bob Hope won a tremendous ovation when he received the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award, a special Oscar.

Four Injured In Wind Gap Accident

WIND GAP — Four persons were injured in a three-vehicle collision at Broadway and Center St. at 7:20 a.m. yesterday.

Leo Reinhardt, acting police chief, said a car driven by Ralph J. Serfass, 44, Wind Gap, RD 1, crashed into a vehicle operated by Nicholas Renaldo, 35, of Box 147, Roseto.

The impact threw Renaldo's car into a traffic light standard and it rebounded into Broadway into the path of a truck owned by Lehigh Building Block Co., Allentown, and driven by Kenneth Sandt.

Three women passengers in the Renaldo car were thrown from the vehicle.

They were identified as Jean Bettini, N. Broadway, Wind Gap; Lucy Caracio, 50, of 432 Pennsylvania Ave., Bangor, and Mary Capobianco, 52, of 26 Dewey St., Roseto. They were en route to work at the Diamond Blouse Co. plant at Bethlehem.

The Caracio woman was admitted to Easton Hospital with a broken left leg, cuts of the right leg and chest and body bruises; the Capobianco woman was hospitalized with bruises of the chest and body and a cut of the right eyelid, while Renaldo and the Bettini woman were treated for bruises and abrasions and discharged.

Serfass said he stopped at the intersection and then drove on, striking Renaldo's vehicle. Reinhardt said he will be charged with failure to yield the right of way. Total damage was $2,500.

Earlier, Porumbanu's lawyer had said in New York when asked if his client was married, "I don't know, maybe he got a Mexican divorce."

Allen said Porumbanu showed him divorce papers that had been translated into English.

"I only read far enough to see that it was a divorce. I think it might have been a Mexican one," Allen said.

Miss Benedict, 19, and Porumbanu, 35, vanished Monday night from New York and a Brooklyn magistrate issued a warrant for her arrest.

Charge Commonwealth Lax In Proposing Highways

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The federal government has failed to bring interstate highway projects to Pennsylvania fast enough because the state hasn't proposed them, a Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce spokesman charged Tuesday.

James B. Summy wrote Gov. David L. Lawrence that the State Highways Department is to blame for delays in expediting the interstate defense highway system in the Commonwealth rather than the federal road bureau.

Summy's letter was prompted by recent remarks, attributed to Lawrence, charging that the interstate system had bogged down. Summy said the state department of highways has not planned enough, has not done enough.

The chamber spokesman said the state's 12-year program of state participation in the interstate system contained no system of priorities, no timetable. He said there were omissions that will injure Philadelphia, the state and the nation. He said the project was merely a listing rather than a real program or plan.

Summy listed these alleged omissions: Widening of the Pennsylvania Turnpike for its entire length. Extension of the Schuylkill Expressway to Erie, thus providing another cross-state route.

Flood Threat, Rain Cease

RAIN, which drenched the Poconos since last Saturday, ended yesterday with no immediate threat of flooding on area creeks.

An additional .74 of an inch fell early yesterday bringing the total since Saturday to 3.34 inches.

Marshall Reese, Monroe County Civil Defense director, said late yesterday: "As far as we can see now, there is no danger."

He said the Brodheads Creek was gradually falling and noted that no precipitation was predicted for the next 24 hours.

Reese said the Delaware River was high but that damage appeared "only minor, if any."

FIRE AT PLANT of the Daily Record's commercial printing dept. was extinguished by Stroudsburg firemen in a half-hour. Aided by an automatic sprinkler system which kept the fire from spreading, firemen had the blaze under control easily, and confined it to a small area. Thick smoke, however, hampered efforts for a few minutes. (Staff Photo by MacLeod)

Blaze Extinguished At Daily Record Plant

A FIRE of unknown origin broke out in the commercial printing section of the Daily Record at 3:25 p.m. yesterday, causing some damage in a small area near one of the presses before it was extinguished.

It was explained that the automatic sprinkler system kept the fire from spreading and causing more extensive damage to nearby paper stock and other presses.

The area where the fire started is at the opposite end of the building from where the large press which prints the newspaper is located.

The fire was discovered by the personnel of the dept. and the alarm was immediately turned in to the fire dept. although the automatic fire alarm at the building had already begun to sound.

Stroudsburg firemen were on the scene quickly and in less than 30 minutes had the fire extinguished.

While the blaze was confined to the few square-foot area where some cleaning liquids were stored, intense smoke was generated by the fire causing firemen to use masks to enter the building to check the fire.

The black smoke went through the entire building, lingering for some time after the fire was finally declared out.

It was stressed that the fire will not prevent the firm from doing any job work in the future.

Rising Rivers Continue Smashing Midwest Dikes

(By The Associated Press)

RISING RIVERS smashed holes in dikes and threatened new breaks in the Midwestern flood zone Tuesday.

The main danger was concentrated along the Missouri River in Missouri and in a 300-mile stretch of the Mississippi from southern Iowa to Cairo, Ill.

But levees also burst on feeder streams.

About 100 students left classes in Carthage (Ill.) College and joined 200 other volunteers in a fight to hold the levee at Niota, Ill., on the Mississippi.

Ralph Hough, a faculty member who led the Carthage task force, said the levee was threatened by huge waves. Thousands of sandbags were heaped atop the levee.

The Mississippi flowed into 5,000 acres of rich farm land after spilling over a levee in two places south of Clarksville, Mo., about 70 miles north of St. Louis.

A break in a dike near Augusta, Mo., let the Missouri pour over 2,000 acres of fertile bottom land.

A levee on the North River burst near the Mississippi River east of Palmyra, Mo., and water rolled across 800 acres of land.

The Mississippi swelled again north of Quincy, Ill.

A new appeal for flood workers came from Gregory Landing, Mo., where the Mississippi threatened to break through the levee in two places.

The Mississippi inched up again at Canton, Mo., and National Guardsmen relieved civilians on dike patrol duty. The river had dropped Monday in that sector after a levee break near Mey, Ill.

The overflow from that breach flowed into Meyer Tuesday.

Several thousand acres of land, unprotected by dikes, were inundated in the Miller City-Olive Branch region along the Mississippi in extreme southern Illinois.

The Fox River forced about 200 families from their homes in Lake County, Ill.

New breaks in levees sent water from the Cedar River into lowlands around Wapello, Iowa.

The Seneca River overflow spread to homes, parks and highways on the outskirts of Syracuse, N.Y. About 50 families moved out.

Win Holds Convention Majority

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) won the Wisconsin Democratic presidential primary Tuesday night with a majority of the statewide vote and six of 10 congressional districts.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) went down to a respectable defeat and he was ready to claim that actually it was something of a victory for an underdog.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon came in third in the statewide balloting. He had no opposition on the Republican side of the primary and never campaigned in the state.

At the moment of victory in a crucial election, Kennedy had a claim on 20 of the 30 votes in the Democratic National Convention which were up for grabs. Humphrey was reaching for the other 10.

Confronted with returns showing him 20,000 votes behind in the statewide vote, Humphrey said, "Well listen, I still consider this a warmup exercise for me. I do not feel injured. I mean politically injured, by the results. I feel it is a reassuring vote."

Race at Start

The Minnesota senator made a race of it in the early going, but only because he was strong in the areas which counted ballots first.

While Humphrey led up to the half way point in the tallying, Kennedy had begun chipping away his margin long before.

Kennedy sprang into the lead with half the precincts reported and then began pulling away.

With two-thirds of the count, the Massachusetts senator had things all his own way. He had boosted his statewide spread past 20,000 votes and had a firm hold on six of the 10 congressional districts.

That was just what he had said he expected to take—he said anything beyond that would be gravy.

At that point, it looked as if he would have to do without gravy.

But he told a nationwide television audience: "I feel good because I believe it was a successful campaign against a worthy opponent. It was a very long and grueling campaign. After tonight I will continue to work on the other primaries."

Galatians 6:1-10

"Truly, I say to you, as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me." (Matthew 25:40, rsv.)

Because we bear the name of Christ, we must bear the world's anguish, too. A visitor to San Francisco looked out from his hotel window toward a massive stone building on an island in the bay.

"Charming villa out there; who owns it?" he asked casually.

The stone building was "The Rock," Alcatraz Federal Prison. The answer to the question of ownership is that all citizens of the nation own it. Men who have been apprehended for crime possess it. We who call ourselves free are less than free so long as conditions which tend to spawn crime exist in our society.

Temptation and sin were concerns of Jesus. As His disciples, there are social problems for which we seek redemptive Christian answers. The attitude of indifference will not suffice for those who have vowed to follow the compassionate Christ.

PRAYER: O God, touch our spirits that our eyes may see opportunities to minister to the world's need. May our discipleship be proved by our love expressed in helpful deeds. For Christ's sake, whose rule we long for. Amen.

PUC Refuses Cement Haul Applications

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility Commission Tuesday turned down a move by 13 trucking firms to get cement hauling certification in eastern Pennsylvania.

The commission contended the firms failed to show that additional hauling services are needed.

The PUC decision declared six of the firms took part in a "broadly conceived concert of action" to monopolize the state's cement hauling business.

The firms were identified as: E. Brooke Matlack, Philadelphia; Chemical Tank Lines and Modern Transfer, both of Allentown; Top Transport, Pittsburgh; Schwerman, Universal, and Cement Express, Bridgeport.

The six firms' applications were supported by a group of 14 producers in Lehigh, Northampton, Carbon, Berks, Montgomery and York counties.

The producers the PUC said, advised the commission they planned to give their hauling business solely to the six truckers.

The producers have refused to give any business to three other trucking firms certified to haul cement since 1958 by the PUC, the commission declared.

The PUC identified the cement producers as: Alpha Portland, Lehigh Portland, Allentown Portland, Lone Star Cement, Penn Dixie Cement, Universal-Atlas Cement Division of U.S. Steel Corp., Hercules Cement, Dragon Cement, Whitehall Cement, Keystone Portland, National Portland, Giant Portland, Copley Cement and Medusa Portland.

Other trucking applications refused were MTS Inc., Harrisburg; John and Steve Fiderak, Tamqua; Anthony Bolish, Scranton; M. Ferraro Trucking, Swoyersville; Pennsylvania Truck Lines, an affiliate of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Black Diamond Transport Co., affiliated with the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and Reading Dispatch, Inc., affiliated with the Reading Co.

The three trucking firms presently permitted to haul cement are Seaboard Tank Lines, Scranton; Coastal Tank Lines, York, and Harold C. Gabler, Chambersburg.

Bangor Men Arrested On Rape Charge

PHILIPSBURG, N.J. — Two Bangor men were freed on bail by Phillipsburg magistrate following their arrest on charges of rape of a 12-year-old Bethlehem girl in Lopatcong Township, just outside Phillipsburg N.J.

Joseph T. Bernman, Phillipsburg magistrate, set bail for Samuel Heard, 21, of 141 Bangor St., Bangor, at $2,500, and for Samuel Jannette, 21, of 33 S. Third St., Bangor, $500. Jannette is listed as a material witness.

The alleged attack took place shortly after 10 p.m. Sunday night on South Main St., Phillipsburg, when Jannette pulled the girl into the car driven by Heard.

The girl told police that she was driven to a point along River Road, in Lopatcong Township, where she and Jannette got out of the car. It was at this point the attack took place.

Following the attack she was driven back to Main Street and put out of the car. Here a man on the street, who had been with the girl earlier, saw her get out of the car and took down the license number.

The two Bangor men were traced by the license number of the car, by Phillipsburg police investigating the attack.

Charge Waste, Foul-Up In State Dept. Schools

WASHINGTON (AP)—House investigators released a report Tuesday alleging waste and foul-up in the Foreign Service Institute, the State Department's language training school.

Rep. John J. Rooney (D-NY), chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee handling State Department funds, accused officials of "hocus-pocus and a sham and a deliberate attempt to mislead" with figures designed to keep the institute in business. They denied the charge.

Rooney used the angry words in closed session Feb. 23 after the department sought $3 million dollars to run the institute another year. The transcript, now made public, also included the findings of committee staff investigators.

Rooney previously had nudged the department into closing its French language school at Nice, France, which the congressman called a rest home on the Riviera. He was no better disposed toward the institute, which is housed in a luxury apartment building in nearby Arlington, Va.

He called it "fantastic" that a large proportion of the graduates were assigned to posts where the language in which they were recently trained is not used. He declared hundreds of diplomats' wives have been given free training there, without authority of law. He protested the free bus shuttle service from the school to the department offices downtown.

According to the staff report:

1. Of the 501 junior foreign service officers trained in 1955-59 at the institute, 239 were sent to posts where the language studied would be of little or no use.
2. As many as 60 of the school's 100 classrooms can be found unused during the day.
3. There are too many instructors per pupil. For example, there were three full-time tutors to teach four students in Serbo-Croatian and the same ratio applied in Portuguese.
4. The cost of training a student one year at Nice averaged $16,618, including the diplomat's salary. The student-year cost at another branch school now closed, at Mexico City, was $18,475.
5. The institute's costs were generally much higher than those at universities and private language training centers. Georgetown University figured its cost for a month's schooling in Turkish at $150 per student, for example, compared with $278 at the institute.

The artist does not care for "innovation purely for its own sake." Trained at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, of which she is a member, she likes to experiment with the use of paint for texture and has been a leader in the relatively new use of plastic-based paints.

All of the paintings which go on view Saturday at the Center are landscaped. Most, however, do not conform to the traditional idea involved in this term.

The exhibit is open to the public, without charge. The Center is located over the J. C. Penney Co. store on Main St. in Stroudsburg. There will be an opening reception from 2-5 p.m. on Sunday, April 10. The exhibit will be open from 2-5 on Saturday and Sunday afternoons for the month of April.

New Painting Style At Show At Pocono Art Center Here

WHEN Gloria S. Randolph's new show of paintings goes on view this Sunday at the Pocono Art Center, the art-viewing public will be getting its first look at a new concept in painting.

There will be a number of works done in customary size and shape, but one side of the Center will be turned over entirely to Mrs. Randolph's latest painting style.

These new works are called "shaped" paintings. They do not conform to the accepted definition of a canvas as a work generally framed in square or rectangular forms. Some are diamond-shaped; others explode in a variety of angles and curves in each one, however, the shape of the painting itself has been used to extend, modify or enlarge the composition of the work.

Credit for the term, "shaped painting," goes to Jan Randolph, the five-year-old daughter of the artist. Just for good measure there will be a special section in the Art Center show EMPORIUM, Pa. (AP)—Gov. Lawrence says the Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic convention has no favorite candidate at this time.

"At the national convention, we in Pennsylvania expect to have a modest part in the nomination of our party's presidential candidate," Lawrence told a Cameron County Democratic rally here last night.

"We are a large state with 81 convention votes," he said, "and we are presently uncommitted. We have no favorite son candidate for president. We have no candidate for vice president. We have no desire to be king makers. . . . We are not part of any coalition to stop any candidate."

The authorities who are entrusted with the future welfare and growth of Monroe County would do well to heed the advice handed out the other day by the president of the Keystone Shortway Assn.

Z. H. Confair, a state senator living in Williamsport, testified at Bloomsburg during a public hearing covering a 20-mile section of the Shortway in the Danville-Berwick area.

Sen. Confair warned communities along the Shortway's path to provide for community planning "so they don't ruin the area." He suggested planning for industrial, commercial and housing areas.

The Shortway leader also said there will be a "100 percent increase in traffic" when the cross-state superhighway is built and again advised long-range planning.

His words were directed at all counties along the 291-mile Shortway which do not already have planning programs in force. But he might well have been thinking of Monroe County in particular, for it is this section which will feel the earliest and possibly the greatest impact from the Shortway.

Such growth will be a natural development in view of our proximity to New York City and Philadelphia, and the fact that local sections of the Shortway are either under contract now or construction is imminent.

One phase of the Stroudsburgs Thruway is finished, the other is being built, stretches between here and Crescent Lake are approaching the contract stage, and a public hearing is scheduled tomorrow at Hazleton on the 30-mile section between Crescent Lake and Drums.

It all adds up to this fact: either we adopt an adequate planning program without further procrastination or we suffer the consequences. It's obvious that land values will deteriorate if the growth and development of our county is not regulated.

Property owners, representing the largest segment of taxpayers in the county, deserve a square deal from our local government officials. The protection they demand can come only from a sound planning program. And it's up to the county commissioners to initiate that program.

How about it, commissioners, do you plan to break out of your shell with a forward-looking outline for sponsoring land-use planning, or must the county wait until it is too late to reap the benefits such a program will bring?

Defiant DeGaulle

By testing France's second atomic bomb, President de Gaulle reminds the United States, Britain and Russia that their "atomic club" has a fourth member. As the newcomer, he also recalls his earlier warning that France will observe its own ground rules on nuclear testing.

In the French blast over the Sahara, there was more than a touch of defiance. Premier Khrushchev was still in France, still inveighing against nuclear tests by any power. Moreover, he had just hinted that a U.S.-British-Soviet test agreement might be possible before the Big Four summit May 16.

At Geneva, too, Soviet delegate Tsarapkin was telling his American and British colleagues that Russia saw "an encouraging step" in the Eisenhower-Macmillan test ban proposal. This called for an airtight three-power treaty on major controllable tests to be followed by a limited "moratorium" on underground experiments for which a control system has still to be discovered.

Gen. de Gaulle's attitude has been that France needs more tests and would agree to suspension only if nuclear weapons themselves were abolished. Obviously this would give France plenty of time to build toward a nuclear weapons parity with the established atomic powers.

The question is whether Gen. de Gaulle could or would play the nuclear maverick if the U.S., Britain and Russia went ahead on a test treaty. Certainly France would have to stand alone against universal condemnation.

There will be time enough, however, to worry about France. What is needed first is an agreement by Mr. Khrushchev.

Hear Those Angel Voices Calling!

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Sen. Barry Goldwater

There is a little wind blowing in from the West and its name is Barry Goldwater. It will probably not become a tornado, but it is interesting just the same.

Nobody expects Sen. Barry Goldwater really to run for President or even Vice President. But the amount of talk on the subject in Republican circles tells something.

It is that a sufficiently large body of Republicans desires a Republican candidate who will not attempt to out-liberalize John Kennedy or Hubert Humphrey.

There were two objections to Governor Nelson Rockefeller: one was that in Party history, he lacked the seniority to run for President; the other was that he had built his career as a Roosevelt-Truman liberal and really belonged in the Democratic Party.

Richard Nixon has always acted like a Republican. After all, did he not serve on the House Committee on Un-American Activities and did he not uncover the Alger Hiss Pumpkin Papers?

And did he not knock out Helen Gahagan Douglas in a fierce fight against the liberals? And did he not say that the Democrats were soft on Communism?

It was generally assumed within the Republican Party that Richard Nixon was a conservative and would hold to conservative principles staunchly. However, the picture is not that clear and the Republican conservatives are not sure.

When they are not sure, they sit on their hands. Wendell Willkie once and Thomas E. Dewey twice met defeat because they could not stimulate conservative Republicans to come out to vote. Many stayed at home. How many have variously been estimated, but any group of voters which refrains from sticking by its party can cripple a candidacy.

Barry Goldwater represents Republican conservatism. It can be said that Barry Goldwater represents American conservatism. His voice on this subject is loud and clear and he accepts no compromises.

Goldwater is a man of considerable private means and is fearless. He has built his own career and is under no obligations.

He takes his position on public questions entirely as his conscience dictates. Therefore conservatives, who have been leaderless for two decades, more and more look to Goldwater for leadership.

Many of the opportunistic Republicans fear Goldwater's rising influence because of the logic of his attack which is that we do not have a two-party system unless each party represents a distinct philosophy.

Not result: truckers with deliveries, for example, in Philadelphia, go through to New Jersey or New York, change to smaller rigs, and to the detriment of Pennsylvania carriers, move the goods into the area with out-of-state smaller rigs. They have no choice.

Or just plain shipments that come to the Pennsylvania border must be transferred from the now accepted "standard" 40-foot trailers to smaller rigs! Transportation costs? You figure it out.

And then there are such cases as the trailer manufacturing firm near economically-hard pressed Hazleton which manufactures the 40-foot trailers — but in effect couldn't sell them (to out-of-state firms) because they couldn't deliver them! It already has threatened a million dollar-plus expansion program of the concern.

Pennsylvania's lawmakers would do well to mend their legislative fences as well as their political fences!

of American life. If we all believe in the same ideas and processes, why bother about two parties and two candidates? Why not let the election go by default?

And so, he tries to state a Republican philosophy based, in the field of economics, upon traditional American private enterprise; in the sociological field, on the freedom of the individual; in the constitutional field, upon the concept of a federal union of sovereign states instead of a centralized welfare state dominated by an overpowering professional bureaucracy.

Thus, Barry Goldwater, not campaigning for the office of President or Vice President or anything else, suddenly finds himself with a national following and in some areas he is even being selected as a favorite son. It is a curious phenomenon.

It could develop into a grass roots opposition to Nixon that might do him considerable harm. I do not say that it will do anything because it is much too soon to measure the strength of the conservative disappointment at Nixon's not standing up to make himself an early target for Democratic attack and mud-slinging.

That, of course, is what could happen. On the other hand, Republican conservatives and many other elements in the American population are tired of opportunism.

They have seen de Gaulle and Adenauer stand strong and courageously for what they believe to be true and they wonder why they have to sit around and listen to the same tweet-tweet of gentle me-tooism. Where, they ask, is the loyal opposition? Despite all that has happened since 1945, they hear about "One World" and they wonder whose world, ours or theirs.

They see the dollar declining not only in domestic purchasing power but in foreign exchange and wonder how long we shall continue to take no solid position.

Now that President Eisenhower has given Nixon a free hand, the Vice President might step forward and gather together his forces. Meanwhile, Barry Goldwater's name continues to crop up.

Gold remains the foundation of money in the historic memory of man, which means that although nations have gone off the gold standard and are issuing paper money in quantities which may be economically unsound, it is generally recognized that fiscal stability can only be restored if the gold standard were restored.

It is for this reason that all countries seek to restore their gold reserves in some form or other. The largest reserves are in the United States and Soviet Russia. However, if the Western nations pool their reserves, they are very much larger than the gold reserves of Soviet Russia, so far as can be discovered.

News From The Realm Of Stamps

By Ray Patton
United States Issues: April 7 at Washington D.C., a four cent World Refugee Commemorative. April 18 at Washington D.C., four cent Water Conservation Stamp and April 22 at San Francisco, Calif., the new 25 cent Air Mail Stamp.

United Nations, April 11, the four and eight-cent Economic Commission for Asia and Far East, Canada, April 20, the five cent Girl Guide commemorative.

Issues scheduled for May: United States, April 18 at Charlottesville, Va., Thomas Jefferson four cent value in the "Credo" series. May 31, at Washington, D.C. the four cent stamp for SEATO (South East Asia Treaty Organization).

Slight changes in the designs of the "Credo" series have been made, the most important one being in the signatures. The Washington signature on the first of this series was widely criticized because it was not a faithful facsimile of the Washington autograph.

It was admitted that the Washington signature had been "doctored" a bit in the interest of legibility. However this did not please those who thought and feel that a facsimile of a signature on a stamp should be a reproduction of an actual autograph.

Therefore authenticity rather than legibility was the aim in the revision of the Franklin and the Jefferson commemoratives, and the signatures on these, as will be in the ones later, are faithful reproductions of contemporary autographs.

The third of the "Credo" series May 18 (Monticello rural station). It will feature the statement by Jefferson, "I have sworn hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man." The design of the "Credo" stamp by Frank Conley, suggesting a bank note of the Colonial period will be used for the issue.

The Monroe Stamp Club will meet tonight at 8 at 36 Club Court, Stroudsburg.

Interpreting The News

Britain Poses New Threat To NATO

By J. M. Roberts (AP News Analyst)

Two European advisory groups, one of them including Canada and the United States, have been meeting in the past few days to consider issues which are far graver than appear on the surface.

In the background is a renewed threat to the whole future of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The threat comes from London, where for weeks officials have been "leaking" the thought that Britain will have to withdraw her soldiers from Europe if the Common Market freezes her trade and advancing political unity freezes her voice in continental political affairs.

Britain became frightened last year over the extent of Franco-German economic and political cooperation, and by the Common Market's aim to lower tariffs while erecting a common tariff structure for imports.

Fuel has been added to the flames in recent days by the Common Market's intention to rush completion of the tariff wall and by German Chancellor Adenauer's reports of President Eisenhower's support of that purpose.

All the old British suspicion of Germany's reliability as an ally has been revived, and the recent has now been extended to France.

With French President Charles de Gaulle about to visit Britain, The Financial Times of London Monday described relations in that quarter as severely strained.

Against that background, the European Parliament, an advisory body established after the war to supervise economic and political cooperation between the six — France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux three — met last week.

It continued its talk of eventually becoming a political parliament, which is sufficiently frightening for Britain, and voted approval of the Common Market's tariff speedup.

At the other end of the scale, the 21-nation Economic Committee, fostered by the United States in an effort to compromise the differences between the Inner Six and Britain's Outer Seven — European Free Trade Assn. — began its deliberations by organizing committees.

So far, the British threat about NATO is considered an unofficial pressure maneuver. But the United States realizes it could become very serious.

Reports From Congress

Southern Strategy

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — Politicians in nine Southern states are planning a balance-of-power strategy for use in the 1960 Presidential election.

Rather than back a third party, which would be "futile" and "ineffective," Southern conservatives hope for a close vote for President—within the 104 electoral votes they hope to control of a national total of 537.

Should such a close election occur, the Southerners figure they could withhold their votes throw the election into the House of Representatives and force important policy concessions out of the candidates whose fate they would then control.

The key phrase for Southerners has turned from "third party" to "independent electors." State laws permit independent electors to be chosen in five Southern states — Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina.

In a Presidential election, you vote, not for the Presidential candidate, but for electors who, by tradition, are committed to vote for the candidate of their party. The laws of those five Southern states say that the electors need not feel morally committed.

In four other Southern states — Louisiana, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia — electors must be associated with a Presidential candidate but the law specifically permits state committees to support candidates other than those of the national committees. Thus, in effect, these states, too, can abandon a major party candidate.

Altogether these Southern states have 104 electoral votes — an ample number to prevent either candidate from getting a clear majority, if the election is at all close.

Almost Happened — In 1948, for example, this situation almost developed. States Rights party candidate Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, carried Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina — 38 electoral votes, plus one State Right vote from Tennessee.

The election was so close in the rest of the country that, if a mere 18,000 Democratic votes in California and 7,000 Democratic votes in Ohio had been Republican, neither GOP candidate Thomas E. Dewey or Democratic candidate Harry S. Truman would have received a majority of electoral votes and the election would have been thrown into the House of Representatives.

The Constitution provides that, if neither Presidential candidate receives a majority of the electoral votes, the House must "immediately" choose from the candidates having the highest number of electoral votes, not exceeding three men. Each state has one vote in the House and a majority determines the election.

Thus, if the failure of the Southern states to cast their electoral votes for one of the major party candidates resulted in throwing the election into the House, the same Southern states would be in a position to extract major policy concessions from either of the candidates.

House Elected Once — The only time the House was called upon to select the President was in 1800. Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr had received 73 of the 276 electoral votes with the remainder split among four others. Balloting in the House began Feb. 11, 1801 and concluded Feb. 17 with Jefferson elected on the 37th ballot.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge (D Ga.) recently urged Southern states to use the independent elector plan. He said the formation of a third party would be "ineffective and futile."

The danger of this Southern strategy to the Democratic chances is felt by National Chairman Paul M. Butler. In a recent memo to Democratic state officials, he said delegates to the National Convention in July who came from states with independent elector plans "may be subject to challenge before the credentials committee."

Butler recalled that the Democratic National Committee last year approved the 1956 convention "loyalty rule" and urged its adoption by the 1960 convention. That rule assumed that convention delegates were "bona fide Democrats who have the interests, welfare and success of the Democratic party at heart."

Civil rights — The decisive factor on whether the traditionally Democratic Southerners will go along with the national party, of course, is the kind of civil rights package adopted by the convention. Meanwhile, their independent electors laws are available in case they choose to use them.

As for the Republicans, the GOP special assistant for Southern affairs, I. Lee Potter, hopes his party will "capitalize fully on the rebellion against radicalism which Butler's plans are creating in the South."

Inside Washington

Safer Drug Labeling

Washington — The Food and Drug Administration has begun a new program to help users learn to make safer drug choices by making them safer for public use.

The FDA has begun a service to drug manufacturers suggesting wording for some medicines which will warn users not to take a larger dose than prescribed, to stop taking a drug if certain effects become apparent, and under what circumstances to consult a doctor.

FDA is working under a section of newly-elected law which calls upon the drug firms to carry adequate warnings on their products when required by the nature of the drugs.

However, FDA warns, the only way the public can benefit from the program is if it learns the habit of reading all of the print on medicine containers.

The best way to reduce injuries to small children in homes is still to keep all medicines, including aspirin, beyond their reach, the FDA says.

Foreign Language School for Dogs — Many local police departments are resorting to the use of dogs as valuable adjuncts to enforcement activities. One of the problems is how to teach the dogs to obey only the commands of their policemen masters.

A simple solution to the problem has been found by the Washington, D.C., police department. They are teaching the dogs to obey commands in one of a number of foreign languages — and some of the languages they have chosen are pretty exotic. Among them are Japanese, Spanish-Indian and German.

Any criminal, or fool-hardy citizen who wishes to turn the police dogs on their masters or the public by suddenly shouting "sic 'em," will find their orders falling on linguistically deaf ears. The dogs are trained to respond only to the foreign — language command taught them by their masters.

Another thing, the range of commands has been held to an absolute minimum — 10 words at the best. They cover such orders as attack, search, release and heel. Just what the words are, are being kept a deep secret by the police department.

Once they become common knowledge, the dogs would have the work started over again in having to be brain-washed, and a different language.

Frequently, I am asked, "Of all the contestants who have appeared on the What's My Line TV panel show, which do you remember best?" Well, that would have to be the elephant trainer from a Jones Beach outdoor show who appeared during the summer of 1955. The owner of the outdoor spectacle MADE him appear for the publicity; Lord knows he didn't WANT to come. His reluctance became clear an hour after he appeared. He was wanted in several states for car stealing, and the FBI nabbed him before he left the theater. Since we hadn't guessed his occupation, he won $50, which was forwarded to him in care of the warden of a federal penitentiary.

Other well-remembered "What's My Line" guests include a gent who made eyeglasses for chickens, another who made false teeth for cows, a lady who counted whales, and a lovely old girl of 80 or thereabouts who crocheted pockets for pool tables.

Lorraine D'Essen owns a beautiful white llama named Linda. Linda is not only housebroken, but is convinced she is a human being. She has the run of Mrs. D'Essen's house in lower Manhattan, and makes the most of it. Linda was lorded it over one gathering there, resplendent in a jeweled necklace, when one of the testy human guests took umbrage.

"We all know Linda's beauty," he sneered, "but does she have to walk around as though she holds the mortgage on the house?"

From Irv Kupcinet comes the story of a young Lothario, bent on matrimony, who brought home each girl he wooed for his mother's approval. Time after time she turned thumbs down, but eventually he discovered a lass who looked, talked, and behaved exactly like his mother. Naturally, mama was delighted, but still the poor boy couldn't marry the girl. His father kicked her out of the house!

The American Medical Journal featured a cartoon recently that showed a wife — with a baby in her arms and five other tots crawling around the floor — talking to a girl friend. "Wait till you see my husband's face," cackles the wife, "when I tell him I crave some pickles and ice cream!"

Gypsy Rose Lee insists that one of the less-retiring maidens in her retinue is "descended from a long line handed to her mother in a taxicab."

Mrs. Walter Rosa suspects that the scales at her butcher's are not exactly accurate. "What makes me suspicious is this," she reports. "I was there the other day and didn't buy a thing and it weighed four pounds!"

The wheels of finance ground to a halt in a Texas bank when executives, tellers and customers all rushed to gape at a depositor who was exhibiting a genuine curio: a one-dollar bill.

The Pennsylvania Story

Quirk Causes Trouble

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — A statutory quirk often can cause a lot of trouble. It has now, here's what happened:

Back in 1957 the Legislature increased the legal overall length of truck-trailer combinations in Pennsylvania from 45 to 50 feet.

This brought the length of the overall unit in line with that of virtually every other state.

At that time the law specified that the length of the trailer or rig, as it is more familiarly known in the trade — should not exceed 35 feet in length, this leaving 15 feet for the length of the tractor, or pulling section of the truck-trailer combination.

Organized trucking interests in the state, headed by the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, when the overall length was increased to 50 feet from the previous 45-foot maximum, wanted the maximum permissible length of the trailer increased to 40 feet.

However vote-conscious lawmakers quivered on the point. Increasing the overall length to the 50 feet (standard in virtually every other state) was viewed as a "tremendous sacrifice" effort on their part.

Any "fiddling" with the length of the trailer would be "just too much" (for some unexplained reason).

In any event, the 35-foot maximum length for the trailer part of the truck-trailer combination stayed on the statute books. It's there today.

Not much attention was paid to the limitation for the trailer units, the primary concern being contained in seeing to it that the overall length remained within the 50 feet permitted by law.

Then on January 29 Secretary of Highways Park H. Martin, perfectly within his legal rights, in effect lowered the boom.

Noting that the maximum legal length for semi-trailers in Pennsylvania is 35 feet, Highways Secretary Martin declared that "Applications for special hauling permits for forty-foot semi-trailers traveling over Pennsylvania's highways systems roads will not be approved, except in these instances."

The exceptions: (1) hauling livestock; (2) motor vehicle carriers; (3) refrigeration devices attached to front of trailers shall not be counted within the 35 feet.

The crux:

Trucking interests are not asking for an extension of the 50-foot overall limit now imposed — but are near the frustration point on the 35-foot limitation for trailers.

Reason, virtually every state — except Pennsylvania — concerns itself only with overall length limitation (which is the main reason for the length limitation in the first place), with the combination within that limitation up to the individual carrier.

In a nutshell, the 40-foot semi-trailer is almost standard — which leaves a ten-foot tractor-pull unit, nothing unusual with the modern cab-over-engine units of today — except in Pennsylvania.

The overall limit on the Pennsylvania Turnpike is 70 feet. Thus insofar as Pennsylvania is concerned, the interstate movement of food, supplies and merchandise isn't difficult — until a truck leaves the turnpike, which without a permit means being picked up by police.

Not result: truckers with deliveries, for example, in Philadelphia, go through to New Jersey or New York, change to smaller rigs, and to the detriment of Pennsylvania carriers, move the goods into the area with out-of-state smaller rigs. They have no choice.

Or just plain shipments that come to the Pennsylvania border must be transferred from the now accepted "standard" 40-foot trailers to smaller rigs! Transportation costs? You figure it out.

And then there are such cases as the trailer manufacturing firm near economically-hard pressed Hazleton which manufactures the 40-foot trailers — but in effect couldn't sell them (to out-of-state firms) because they couldn't deliver them! It already has threatened a million dollar-plus expansion program of the concern.

Pennsylvania's lawmakers would do well to mend their legislative fences as well as their political fences!

East-Burg Council Discusses CD

Fire Signal Use Ended By Borough

THE borough's Civil Defense preparedness — or lack of it — was the principal subject of discussion at last night's meeting of East Stroudsburg Borough Council.

Emerson Stanton, borough CD director, told Council that he had been notified by the fire department that fire sirens could no longer be sounded for CD alerts.

Stanton said that at the last CD drill, during which the sirens were used, some members of the department were critical of the situation as men came from work to answer what they thought was a fire alarm.

Council directed its fire committee to meet with Stanton, Fire Chief Clarence Strunk and the engineer for the borough alarm system to discuss temporary and permanent methods of relaying such alerts.

Stanton said that the fire siren was not satisfactory as an alarm because it was impossible to give the warbling signals called for by the CD on that equipment.

Third Ward residents appeared to complain about the cessation of the borough's war on pigeons, but no action was taken by Council.

At an earlier meeting, Council had authorized police to shoot the pigeons. This practice was stopped, according to Burgess Jesse R. S. Flory, after bird lovers flooded the borough officials with complaints.

Council authorized preparation of a resolution approving again the construction of the Keystone Shortway and directed Borough Manager Sterling Cramer to present it at a public hearing on the Crescent Lake-Hazleton section to be held in Hazleton Thursday.

In other action, Council: Reappointed Ralph Burrows and Stanley Melvin as members of the board of health. Their terms have expired.

Hired Harry J. Lanahan and Harold D. Larson, Jr., as patrolmen on the borough police force upon recommendation of the Police Civil Service Commission.

Concurred with the recommendation of its special committee that the East Stroudsburg Municipal Authority be requested to delete Cresmont Road and portions of Grand and Warren Sts. from the sewer project because revenue does not warrant the expenditure at this time. Albright and Friel, consulting engineers, also concurred in the recommendation.

Accepted the recommendation of the water committee that installation of water mains on Perry St., Cedar Lane and Crestview Heights be given top priority for completion this Spring.

Handcuffs Prove Boy's Undoing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Ten-year old Barton Duvy, fascinated by a pair of handcuffs, decided to slip one around his left wrist Tuesday and snapped it shut.

It was then Barton learned that his classmate, Tommy Bruno, 11, had no key. Police took Barton to the East Liberty Police Station where a locksmith opened the handcuff.

Both boys are pupils at Good Counsel School in Brushport. Tommy told the nuns he found the handcuffs on a street.

Judge Hears Petition In Tax Case

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Judge Harold K. Wood of U.S. District Court Tuesday heard argument on a petition by Dr. James A. Lehman and his wife for a bill of particulars on the government's income tax evasion charges. The government's decision.

The prominent surgeon and his wife are charged with evasion of $281,000 in income taxes for the years 1953 through 1957. Counsel for the defendants told the judge that good administration of justice dictated that the government let them know the things needed to prepare an adequate defense.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Joseph L. McGlynn, opposing the motion, said the doctor is trying to learn the government's evidence so he can tailor his defense accordingly.

Thin-Line Refrigerators

STRAIGHT-LINE design and thinner walls have made possible to manufacture new electric refrigerator-freezer that provide up to five more cubic feet of food storage space without requiring any more floor space than older refrigerators.

Today's mode of living requires that families have more storage space for both fresh and frozen foods, but many modern homes, and kitchens. Today's refrigerator-freezer solve this problem. They contain more food storage space inside, yet do not occupy any more kitchen floor space than older models.

Roomy, specially cooled and humidified compartments keep vegetables, meats and dairy products fresh up to a week. The freezer, which in many models never needs defrosting, holds many pounds of pre-packaged frozen foods as well as left-overs, baked goods, soups and casseroles prepared in advance.

Even a small kitchen can contain its own supermarket if it includes a new electric refrigerator-freezer.

Easy Build Project

Construct A Picnic Table For Backyard

RATHER than drive miles around the countryside, why not try something new — a picnic in your own backyard? You'll get the same sun, sky, stars or moon, and best of all, no bother getting to and from the picnic grounds.

Food takes on an added zest when cooked out of doors and children, as well as grownups, get into a festive mood whenever a picnic is planned.

The table illustrated being sturdily constructed of stock size framing lumber can be built to a six foot length or longer by simply extending top boards. The full size pattern offered below contains step-by-step directions.

Anyone who reads can readily understand. Assembly illustrations show exactly where each piece is fastened while a purchase list of materials specifies what to buy and where to use each piece. Even location of bolt holes is shown on the pattern to further simplify construction.

Send 50 cents in coin or money order (No stamps, please) for Pattern No. 22. Picnic Table, To The Daily Record P.O. Box 215, Pleasantville, New York. Send 35 cents additional for 64 page catalog illustrating over 300 other build it yourself projects. Add 25 cents if you wish first class mail.

Materials Need Give No Confusion

A PROBLEM every homeowner must face eventually is deciding which building materials to use when his house needs maintenance, or repairs, or when a major improvement is in order.

He must judge what material will suit his and his family's taste, and what's best for his style of architecture and his pocketbook. If the building material is visible from the street, he must consider his neighbors and the community as a whole. Most important, he must decide which material will give him the most quality, dollar for dollar.

A case in point might be the homeowner whose house needs a new roof. Four leading reasons why it's important for him to choose a roofing material carefully are:

1. Weather resistance. More than any other part of the house, the roof must withstand weather's roughest blows in all seasons—winter's grinding ice and snow, summer's baking heat, and high winds and drenching rains throughout the year.

2. Durability. A roof must be durable and long-lasting, providing years of sure protection for a house and its contents.

3. Beauty. On most homes, the roof is one of the most visible exterior areas. It should have beauty and color and be in good taste without sun gleam or glare. Asphalt shingles in a tasteful color and rich texture enhance the beauty of a house and improve its appearance in the neighborhood.

4. Application cost. A roofing contractor's experience, plus the time and tools required to apply a new roof, can mean the difference between high and low cost. Most reliable roofers have applied asphalt shingles for years. This, plus the fact that they go in place easily and quickly, means this roofing material is low in applied cost. Usually it can be applied directly over old roofing material, saving the cost and avoiding the mess of removing the old roof.

Insulation To Actually Save You Real $$

HERE'S a bit of good advice for families planning to build or remodel a house. Proper insulation installed during construction is money in the bank, if you ever decide to have the house air conditioned.

Will you ever have air conditioning? Chances are you will. In fact, it has been predicted by a number of authorities, including FHA Commissioner Julian H. Immerman, that within a few years a house without air conditioning will be as obsolete as a house without a bathroom would be today.

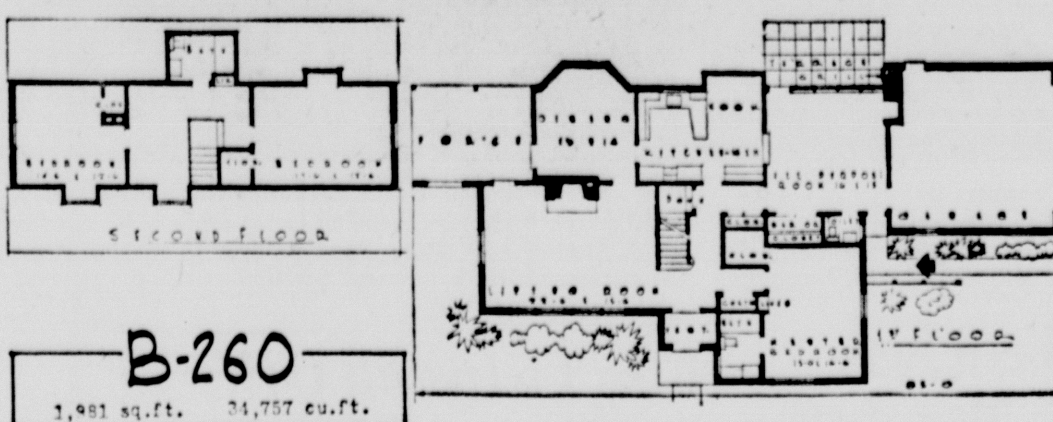

Proper insulation installed now will mean money saved on both equipment and operation later on when air conditioning is added to the house.

Adequate mineral wool insulation in walls, floors and ceilings makes it possible for a smaller, system to cool a house efficiently. A larger unit, which would cost more to buy and operate, would be needed if no insulation were used or if inadequate insulation is installed. Mineral wool will start paying for itself immediately in savings on winter fuel bills. These savings, studies have shown, will more than cover the cost of insulation within a few years. This cost is not a big factor in any case, for it costs little if any more in time and labor to install adequate insulation than it does to do the job improperly.

If the house being remodeled or built is an area where utility rates make electric heating practical, insulation is particularly important. Adequate amounts of mineral wool installed now will make it possible for home owners in these areas to convert to electric heat without re-insulating.

Parade of Homes

Design Captures Look Of Charm, Tranquility

THIS DESIGN captures all the homey atmosphere and charm that anyone would want. It is a type of home that remains a perennial favorite with many people. The correct, simple details and the exacting proportions are important elements in making this particular Early American design so inviting.

Here is a floor plan that indicates luxury living without stiffness — but with enough formality to swell the pride of the owner.

Notable is the all-purpose room with glass wall at the rear. It is accessible to a large rear terrace — as well as having an outside entry at the front. A fireplace powder room and space for a bar makes this room especially convenient for family use, or for entertaining.

The terrace, with separate grill, is conducive to outdoor living as is also the large porch off the living and dining area. Note how convenient this will be for taking meals outdoors on summer days.

The living room with its natural fireplace provides for excellent furniture arrangement by placing the fireplace on an interior wall therefore leaving unbroken wall space. Directly behind the living room is the more formal dining room with beautiful Bay windows for a lovely garden view. With the excellent position of fireplace in the living room, it could easily be made into a see-thru fireplace for the dining room also.

There is a dining nook also with a Bay in the kitchen. The latter is particularly well planned, with "U" shaped work center for convenience and efficiency; and an abundance of counter and cabinet space. Other features include large windows over the sink, broom closet and doors opening to the all-purpose room and to the foyer. Thus, there is direct communication to the front entrance without passing through any other room.

The sleeping arrangement is particularly good. There is a spacious master bedroom, with private bath on the first floor and up the open rail stairway are two good sized bedrooms and separate bath. The space between the two upper bedrooms could well be used as a study.

The full basement contains recreation area, and space for a laundry and utilities.

With doors of the attached garage located as shown on the plan, a lot 120 feet or more wide would be required. With garage doors opening at the front, a minimum width lot of 100 feet would be sufficient, or less, if a corner lot was used. This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. Electrical layout is indicated on the blueprints. Due to the variation in material and labor costs, the estimated construction cost is not given. However, this plan contains 1,981 sq. ft. and 34,757 cu. ft. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

Complete Building plans, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for Design No. B-260 may be purchased for $9.75 for first set; two for $18.25; three for $26.25; or four for $33.75. Identical sets. You may also purchase The Daily Record Book showing 71 designs for 75 cents postpaid. Address all questions and orders to HOMO-GRAPH Home Plan Dept. The Daily Record, Warren, Michigan.

Modernizing The Kitchen Can Be Done Step-By-Step

FROM the financial point of view, one of the best things about kitchen modernizing projects is that "everything doesn't have to be done at once".

Thus, if the current state of the budget will not permit an overall remodeling job, there are many individual improvements that can be made at relatively small cost. Each will make its own immediate contribution to the homemaker's convenience and well-being, and at the same time, be an important step toward the ultimate realization of her "dream kitchen".

Just re-covering the counter surfaces can often work wonders in perk up the appearance and stepping up the efficiency of the kitchen. Most commonly used materials are ceramic tile, linoleum, plastics, stainless steel or wood.

Equally pleasing results can be obtained by re-doing the flooring or the walls.

In choosing a new floor covering, make sure that it is both dirt and grease-resistant. Linoleum, rubber tile, asphalt tile and vinyl plastics are all good.

When it comes to new wall coverings, you can choose tiling, thin gauge linoleum or washable wallpaper. To give your kitchen a refreshing "new look".

Even a fresh paint job, can change the whole appearance of your kitchen, if you use colors judiciously. Darker shades bring walls "closer", pale tones "push" them out, make the room look more spacious. Whites, grays, blues and greens are cool and restful. Reds, yellows, pink and beige are warm and cheerful.

The introduction of more adequate and convenient cabinet space need not await the complete "re-doing" of the kitchen. On the unit-by-unit replacement plan, you can start your improvement program at once, with the assurance that when the project is completed, the overall effect will be one of perfect harmony and functional coordination.

Wall and base cabinet units can be arranged in many different ways to create a kitchen "individualized" to your own needs and tastes.

Handling Tubing
TO clamp thin wall pipe or tubing in a vise without crushing or scratching it, wrap the tubing with several steel wool pads before inserting in the vise. This gives a slip-proof grip and avoids damage to the tubing.

Pilot Holes
INSTEAD of drilling, save time by punching pilot holes for small wood screws or screw eyes.

Brush Holder
JUST one nail makes a fine paint brush holder. Lay the brush flat. Drive a roofing nail part way into the handle near the ferrule. The brush will hang by the nail from the rim of the paint bucket.

Irish Settled In Cuba But Spanish Language Won Out

(Eugene Brown, general manager of the Danbury, Conn., News-Times, a James H. Ottaway newspaper, interrupted a vacation in Key West, Fla., for a weekend in Havana, Cuba. This is the fourth of a five-part series on his experiences.)

KEY WEST—Way back in Cuba's history the Irish came over in numbers and stayed! Their descendants are prominent in Cuban life, but it is disconcerting to walk up to a blond Nordic type who looks like a fellow tourist and then find that Spanish is his native tongue and he knows nothing of the English language.

The drilling of civilians goes on night and day.

We tried to get into the Havana zoo but it was after the normal closing hour of 6 p.m. We couldn't get in to see the animals but we could see multiple platoons of civilians going through squads right, squads left and all the archaic formations which the atomic bomb make so useless.

When Jonathan asked a spectator whom they were going to fight he said "the invaders from the Dominican Republic."

Most everyone drills two or three nights a week.

All over Havana we saw the colorful posters of the "Gobierno Revolucionario" — the Revolutionary Government. New schools, new playgrounds, new commissaries, new roads, new bridges, new buildings, new sports palaces . . .

all of these have flaming billboards attached to the project that proclaimed that the Gobierno Revolucionario was the developer. . . . Also we saw many banners over clubs, or businesses or institutions that the government had "intervened," i.e., taken over. To us it seemed as if the Revolutionary Government had taken over some highly indigestible morsels.

Curiously enough there is no flagrant display of photos of Castro. We had expected to see his photograph peering from every nook and cranny, much like Russia, in the days of Stalin.

I was in Russia in 1933 working as a Merchant Seaman in the Black Sea ports. From every window we saw a picture of Stalin.

Apparently Castro relies upon newspapers, TV and radio to carry the Castro legend rather than upon the "picture-worship" technique. This, to me, was another curious manifestation of the new dictatorship methods. It was, as if he was taking a leaf from our own TV performers who are careful not to risk too much exposure.

Margo shopped for a bottle of Spanish perfume. She wanted it as a gift for Virginia Conniff, the wife of Emmett, who manages the Casa Marina, our hotel in Key West.

After several tries she located it in the French Shop, a fine shop patterned after our small department stores. The store seemed well stocked with merchandise tastefully displayed on shelves. They only had one bottle of the scent and when Margo asked when they would have more they said in a couple of years.

The stores are selling WHAT IS ON THEIR SHELVES. When their present stock of imported, INCLUDING AMERICAN GOODS, is gone, they can't import more. From now on they must sell Cuban goods only. Castro needs the exchange and he won't let importers pay dollars for their goods.

Havana has many beautiful stores. They compare favorably with our own large department stores, and they sell mostly American-made goods. What will happen to these stores when their present stocks are gone, no one knows.

Sure as shooting they won't let any of their help go, Castro takes care of that. He passed a law against it.

I have an idea that the Cubans will find a way of staying in the department store business. They're adaptable and they can have fun on the way side of life.

As our guide remarked when we passed a sign that advertised "One Minute Car Wash," "here in Havana that means 20 minutes."

(Next: Where Castro runs his auctions.)

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

There was a time when the sound of raindrops pattering on the roof was a soporific—better even than counting sheep—particularly in the morning. But since the Flood, there is no such lulling reassurance to the sound.

Therefore when I woke to the rain still raining yesterday morning, I scrambled out of bed and headed for the river to see how high the water was rising. McMichael's was spouting fresh and clear over the green grass along its banks; the Brodheads was spreading brown and squirming across the flats from Leola's cottage to Crossdale's; and the river was within 27 inches of the top of the bank, swirling, eddying, and then steaming along like an express train.

It was a dismal sight, as all summer cottages are before they come alive; porches jammed with boats and picnic tables, muddy yards littered with broken tree limbs, and the rain raining on it all.

Looked a lot better in the afternoon, but sun, particularly, had the river had fallen about two inches. As long as I was on flood patrol, we also visited Shwnee Inn where the 18th green was all water-hole.

I thought I'd seen enough water but when I got back to the plant the water level had risen two inches in the back. I might have known I'd miss a fire in our own back yard. At least we know we've got a very efficient sprinkler system.

You might also know that with all the Big Boys away at a conference the Four Horsemen would start riding through editorial Flood (well, pretty nearly). Fire, (anyway, it was our own), lacking only Famine and Pestilence. Famine hit the smokers when the cigarette machine, well doused with water, refused to function; and Pestilence? It's still early and the pests don't usually start to call until the bars are getting ready to close.

Miss Kresge, Bride-To-Be, Is Honored

A bridal shower in honor of Miss Linda Kresge, who will become the bride of Lloyd E. Bentzoni, Jr., of Stroudsburg on June 18, was held at the home of Mrs. Joseph Pfaffinger, Stroudsburg RD 2, on Saturday night. Mrs. Pfaffinger's daughters, Helen, and Mrs. Jack Shultz of Newtown Square, assisted in entertaining.

Miss Kresge, who lives in Linden, N. J., was home for the weekend and went with her parents to the Pfaffinger home to see movies, only to find the room full of relatives and friends.

It was decorated with blue and white streamers with a canopy of white bells extending from the wall over a decorated table on which the gifts were arranged. A buffet lunch was served from a table centered with a three-tiered cake iced in white and topped with a white sugar bell, trimmed in blue and pink beads.

Present to honor Miss Kresge were Mrs. Clinton Kresge, Mrs. George Heller, Mrs. Arch Ace, Mrs. Howard Kresge, Mrs. Howard Detrick, Mrs. George Yoch, Mrs. Sally Harps, Mrs. Robert Felting, Mrs. Elmer D-Haven, Mrs. Stanley Kresge, Mrs. Donald Hagerman, Mrs. Lowell Kresge, Mrs. Earl Learn, Mrs. Alfred Kresge, Mrs. Lloyd Bentzoni Jr., Mrs. John Shellenberger of Indiana, Mrs. Elmer Kresge Sr., Mrs. Robert Peckham, Miss Arlene Johnson, Miss Joyce Kresge, Miss Katharina Kresge and Miss Jane Shellenberger.

Also sending gifts were Mrs. Walter Detrick, Mrs. Walter Young, Mrs. Richard Snyder, Mrs. Kenneth Starner, Mrs. Robert Reaser, Mrs. Arthur Storm and Mrs. John Smith of Tannersville.

Esther Circle Monday

College Grant-In-Aid Program Set Up By AAUW For A High School Senior Girl

A grant-in-aid program to assist local girls in furthering their education beyond high school has been established by the Stroudsburg branch of the American Assn. of University Women.

Starting modestly, the branch plans to present $75 in 1960 to the senior girl in the first of the four high school districts, where the grant-in-aid will be made in the following order: first, Stroud Union; second East Stroudsburg Area; third Pocono Mountain; and fourth Pleasant Valley.

Should the fund be increased sufficiently to provide for more than one grant in one year, the additional grant shall be made to the district next in order. The senior girl shall be selected by the principal of the school or a committee from the faculty selected by the principal, and must meet the following qualifications:

- 1) Her scholastic rating must be in the top fifth of her class;
- 2) preference should be given to a girl who needs financial help; and
- 3) the girl shall have been accepted for admission to a four-year college which grants a BA or BS degree. The check will be mailed to the college of her choice.

The program, submitted by the committee which includes Mrs. David Mazer, Mrs. William A. Anderson, and Mrs. Eugene Martin, was approved at the meeting on Monday night at the Stroud Community House, and has been discussed with local high school principals.

It is an extension of the AAUW program to assist outstanding women scholars through its Fellowship program which provides scholarships for graduate study for American women and study grants for women of other countries who wish to study in the United States.

Book Fair Plans
Money for both funds will be raised through the annual Book Fair, sponsored by the branch. Mrs. Robert Harper, chairman of this year's Book Fair, announced that it will be held July 6, 7, 8 and 9 on the porch at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, and that the committee has set a goal of 2,000 books for sale.

Members were each given a quota of seven saleable books: late novels, text and reference books, children's books and classics being among those preferred. They were also asked to canvass their friends and the general public during Spring housecleaning time or moving time. Mrs. Harper will collect any donations.

It was also announced that the Stroudsburg branch will serve as hosts to the Neighborhood Conference to be held here in October.

Delegates are still being sought for the Philadelphia State Conference to be held in Philadelphia, May 12-14. Miss Ruth Black will represent the branch at the Regional Conference to be held at Connecticut College for Women.

At the meeting with Mrs. Jack Lantz presiding, members voted on legislative proposals for the state AAUW. Mrs. Lantz announced that the banquet will be held May 2 at 6:30 at High Point Inn.

Miss Katherine McFarland announced that there was room for three or four new members for the Great Books course for next year, and those desiring to join should let her know in time to receive a summer reading list.

The Fine Arts group will start modeling clay at the meeting on April 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Stowell, Spring Lake.

Members were invited on May 10 to hear a recording of "Don Juan in Hell" by the original cast.

Drama Group Presents
Glimax of the meeting on Monday night was the presentation of two one-act plays by the Drama Group under the direction of Marie Lehrer and Diana Shanley.

The first "If the Shoe Pinches" starred Margaret Smith, supported by Lorna Koehler, Katherine Edwards and Janice Stettler.

The second, freely adapted from "Rehearsal," a play by Christopher Morley, was a take-off on an amateur play rehearsal and as such brought in humorous references to many of the local AAUW members.

Ann Venezia played the part of the director with the cast including Betty Sanborn, Sonia James, Judy Cox, Ruth Dunning and Joyce Murray.

Following the program, refreshments were served by Mrs. Ray Price Jr. and Mrs. John Black.

Dear Abby

Some Doctor Will Cure Her

Dear Abby: My mother, who is getting on in years, is causing me much embarrassment. She lives alone and is able to care for herself financially and in every other way.

She is as healthy as a horse but her favorite pastime is calling my doctors. She insists on talking to the doctor himself. When she gets him on the phone she'll talk his ear off. She refuses to go to their offices. She just likes to call them up and talk about herself. She has done this to almost every prominent doctor in town. (One doctor sent her a bill stating that he had spent more time on the phone with her than he does on the average house call. Who could blame him?) What can I do about this situation? My mother isn't the kind of person you can reason with.

Dear Embarrassed: There is no need for you to feel embarrassed. Almost every doctor has had experience in treating "telephonicitis." Let each one handle it in his own way.

Dear Abby: I was amused to read in your column that you couldn't understand why grown men permitted themselves to be called Bobby, Jimmy, and Billy. Look at Bobby Jones, Jimmy Durante and Billy Graham! And Winston Churchill doesn't mind being called "Winnie" and even you, Miss Van Buren, are called "Dear Abby."

I want to know how many women get married to sleep by themselves? I am 50 and he 47.

Dear Discontented: You need a bigger couch, a smaller jug, or another husband.

Confidential to St. Louis suburbanite: The "problem" you wrote of is not your problem. The person who is "different" and does not consider his "difference" a problem should not be criticized or ridiculed. If he lives happily and peacefully with others—and does them no harm—who are we to sit in judgment because he is unlike ourselves?

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply, write to Abby in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Every Teen-Ager Wants To Know," send 25c and a large, self-addressed stamped envelope in care of this paper.

Pack 83 Set For Events In April, May

THE MARCH pack meeting of St. Matthew Cub Scouts, Pack 83, was opened with a prayer, led by Cub Scout Joseph Keiper. Cub Scout Richard Kuklentz led the group in the flag salute.

Cubmaster Richard Kuklentz advised the group the next pack meeting will be held April 25 at which time the Cubs would participate in a Pinewood Derby. First, second and third prizes would be awarded to the winning cubs. Winners will also compete with other area winners at the Blue Valley Farm Show to be held in Bangor, May 13th and 14th.

Cubmaster Kuklentz presented awards to Stephen Bolcar, Jack Albertson, John Bensinger, Jos. Gondell, Jos. Murphy, Jos. Polinski, Stephen Swenson, David Lyons, Terrance Baird, Patrick Flanagan, Michael Nicolais, James Meissner, Donald Coleman and Stephen Grudis.

A skit, Dr. Quiz, was presented by Den 5 under the direction of Mrs. Baird and Mrs. Meyer. The skit consisted of questions about Pennsylvania in keeping with the monthly theme "Know your State."

Den 6, under the guidance of Mrs. Grudis and Mrs. Mann, portrayed life in an Indian village.

Following the skits representatives of each den displayed and explained items made during the weekly den meetings.

Expect Lead Will Shorten

HARRISBURG (AP)—Democrats expect to slice the Republican statewide voter registration lead to 25,000 before the April 26 primary.

That was the prediction yesterday of Democratic State Chairman John S. Rice. He said the estimate was based on a survey by state party headquarters.

Republicans held a registration lead of about 69,000 over Democrats last November. The lead has been dwindling steadily since George M. Leader in 1954 became the first Democrat elected governor in 20 years.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Wednesday, April 6, 1960

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Perhaps a few new decisions to make, maybe an old practice to stop or alter. Do not add up to heat all-round policy for all concerned, and don't weaken stand on principles.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—You may have more to accomplish than you thought. Whatever your day's demands, take all in order, and strive forward with confidence, but with ease, too. No fretting.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Your planet Mercury's non-committal position indicates you take cognizance of all trends, weigh well hints, take on your task for instruction and wrong information.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Here is where the Moon stands for continued progress with some new emphasis on progress, success that is dead-end, use essential ally, don't wait when time counts.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Let not those pesky annoyances that develop now and then disturb the progress that belongs to a well-run day. You can have progress with will and effort.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Note, all we seek is not good for us, and some things we don't bargain for are best in the end. This occurs frequently; makes life interesting, too.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—You can be your usual pillar of strength and fine example, or wavering, indecisive. You must determine early, strong as aspects for true progress, success that lacks principles.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio)—Many things to be considered in day's plans, actions, pros and cons. Some matters may puzzle, but keep working at them and you will see right solutions. Favorable rays but aim well.

November 24 to December 23 (Sagittarius)—Note advice to Sagittarius now, also heed wise hints from all knowing and honest sources. Mind especially what you consider right sources. Add tact and maintain strong home.

December 24 to January 19 (Capricorn)—If you cannot achieve it one way, you can in another. Always keep trying, and aiming at super methods, better cooperation with your own efforts. Be at ease.

January 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—Enjoying children, animals, whole some pastimes, like good reading, outdoor sports, charity affairs all can boost morale, build appreciation of life itself. Plane say, TACT, YOU BORN TODAY: Aries, Head Sign. Tremendous endurance, ingenuity, you live life and the good things it offers; often see more values than many, because you more them. You must direct carefully increase your store if you work diligently. ALSO in more reserved manner at times. If you tend, with your enthusiasm, to overdo, drive too hard, may be witless, intolerant, overbearing. So with strong traits and ability go strong inclination. You must direct carefully. Wholehearted, happy friends for free time, needs, but look for meditation. Birthdate of Millard E. Tydings, U. S. Senator.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Students Profit Two Ways

By William A. Doyle

Q Two years ago, when I was in the eighth grade, we studied about stocks and bonds. The class became enthused and asked our teacher to permit us to invest. He agreed to handle the details by buying a share of whatever stock the class selected and by selling us portions of that share, at $1 a portion.

The class decided to buy a share of Radio Corp. of America common stock. We paid $34 for it. We felt this was a popular stock and would grow in value. The idea was to keep the stock until we became high-school seniors.

The teacher explained that the stock might also fall in value. It did for a while, during the 1958 recession. Since that time, it has climbed in value to about double what we paid for it.

All the "stockholders" are now in different classes with different teachers. But we all continue to get a few pennies in "dividends" every time a dividend is declared on the stock. Our eighth-grade teacher sees to that.

I feel this was a wonderful experience for young people. If $34 can become almost $70, what can $100 do?

A. It most certainly was a wonderful experience—one you should be very grateful for. And not just because of the pennies in "dividends" and the dollars in profits. You have learned a lesson about the stock market and the American economy in a very fine way.

Everytime a letter such as this comes in, I can only say, "Hats off to the teachers of America." When a teacher is willing to go to the time, trouble and (undoubtedly) the out-of-pocket expense to handle something such as this, that teacher deserves an extra vote of thanks from all of us who are interested in preserving our free enterprise system.

Depends On Contract

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Mack Truck Corp. spokesman said Monday the possibility of the firm's plant remaining in Allentown depended to a large extent upon reaching a competitive labor contract.

HORSE CARS

EDINBURGH—The first railway horsecars were started in Scotland in about 1812.

The whole thing may have been somewhat unorthodox. Maybe there were some rules fractured along the way. But the lesson taught was well worth it.

However, remember the part of the lesson in which you learned that stocks go down in price as well as up. The answer to your question is that $100 invested in stocks might do as well, or even better, than the $34 investment. But it might do worse.

Q I belong to an investment club. Several members believe that the club should subscribe to an investment advisory service. I am opposed to this idea. What is your opinion?

A. That depends on how good an advisory service the members have in mind. Some are pretty good. Some are fair. Some are complete flops. (Don't ask me to pick one for you. I simply refuse to put my neck on that kind of a chopping block.)

One of the main ideas in forming most investment clubs is to provide club members with information and an education on the stock market. A subscription to an advisory service can often help there.

If the club works pretty closely with a brokerage house, the brokerage house should be willing to let the club avail itself of whatever advisory service the brokerage firm subscribes to.

A great number of brokerage firms put out their own market letters and other material—practically running their own advisory services.

This problem should be discussed by the members of the club and then decided by a vote. In an investment club, majority rule is the sensible way to run things.

(Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.)
